SAVING BANK.

BANK MAUA & Co.

—N. 103 calle Cangallo.—

The immense advantages of Accounts Current are now so generally felt, and appreciated in the two great emporiums of the River Plate—Montevideo & Buenos Ayres—that there are very few Merchants who fail to keep one at the Bank in which they place the most confidence.

The Bank of Maua & Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the wanting class in that city, a safe & profitable depository for their savings.

The sums deposited in that most important institution are daily increasing and already reach a very huge number.

These advantages have not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of Clerks, artisans, workingmen & servants [of all classes & conditions] who are equally interested in putting their savings out at interest than providing themselves with a scarce fund in case of need, sickness or old age, instead of squandering them in immoral gambling, in lotteries and other frivolities.

The Bank of Maua and Co. of this city following the example of their firm in Montevideo now offer the same facilities in this city and will open on the 1st October a "Saving Bank" at N. 103 calle Cangallo from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. on week days; and on Sundays and holidays from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. for the reception of the savings of the classes already mentioned.

The Bank will deliver to each depositor a Pass Book in which will be entered the sum out deposited and withdrawn.

The depositor is permitted at any time to withdraw the whole or part of the sum deposited, in the former case the interest will be calculated up to date.

The Bank of Maua & Co. is safe only known to the public by the benefits derived from the course of its operations which are regulated on the strictest and soundest principles and always directed to promote the general welfare.

The Bank of Maua and Co. are also persuaded that this new branch of their business will render immense service to the working classes of Buenos Ayres and its neighbourhood.

PARLIAMENTARY RECORD.

Yesterday Congress was very dull. Nothing funny was going on. When the President took the chair a small note was handed him from Mr. Laspiur, who wished not to be seen any longer amongst his old acquaintances. A discussion took place whether to accept his resignation or not. Sr. Cullen thought it was better to settle the matter at once. After serious debate it was thought better to accept it, as it was more than probable Sr. Laspiur had taken pattern after Dr. Sarsfield, and made up his mind irrevocably not to attend the house any more. The bill for mobilizing the militia was next on order. The 4th article, with a slight amendment, was passed, but the 5th article acted like a bombshell in the house. The committee wanted to add something to it, which the Minister of War said would turn the law upside down. Sr. Madariaga insisted upon the amendment being adopted. Sr. Alsina opposed it, and after a long discussion the amendment of the committee was at last thrown out. The donations to the widows was next in order, i. e., 10,000 silver dollars to each of the following widows—La valle, Madrid, and Paz. A member stated that he agreed with the English paper in this city, and that the national creditors who held vouchers should be paid before pensions were given. In the discussion it leaked out that the widow Madrid had been receiving the full general's salary paid to her husband, so she could not be so badly off, and notwithstanding this it was stated that the poor widow was reduced to the utmost misery. The extravagance of some old ladies was commented on by a young member.

Then came the deputies.

The eternal budget. The Minister of War was on the ground. Some people in the gallery thought he was there to preserve order: it was a mistake; he attended to answer questions. A long, desultory debate ensued. Members confessed that they were debating on a subject on which they had the most imperfect information. It was suggested that the proposed increase of officers' salaries should stand over until the Government could explain itself.

The house then rose and went to dinner.

SAVINGS BANK.

The Provincial Finance Minister, fearing lest the new Maua Savings Bank might take all the small depositors away from the Casa de Moneda, has addressed a note to the President of the bank, calling upon him to start an opposition savings institution. The proposed terms of the new concern are as follows:—Deposits, from four copper rents, up shall be received from customers at a low rate of interest.

Opposition is, they say, the life of trade. We hope, if the Minister's hint be adopted, it will instil new life into this almost expiring institution.

It may be a matter of regret to some that so distinguished a financier as the minister should have allowed a private bank to take the initiative in this matter, but it is a consolation to us all that emancipation from the paper-bank thraldom is at last at hand.

The days of the Casa de Moneda tyranny are numbered. Stupid formalities and hum drum regulations have proved most successful in driving customers to the customers. The minister, painfully convinced of this sad fact, hopes that by opening a savings bank he may yet gain an influence amongst the lower classes which his cherished bank has lost amongst the higher.

The plain matter of fact is that banks in order to secure business, must court it; and, instead of a customer being met in friend to these monetary dispositaries, it is now vice versa.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The Paxon yesterday brought glorious accounts of the Interior. It seems a chastisement of Heaven that while we are doing everything to embroil our Oriental neighbours, a storm rises in the far west, threatening to overturn some of our lofty Provincial institutions. Cordoba is in a ferment, and the Chacho careers through Rioja with his rebel army.

Sr. Dominguez, Provincial Finance Minister, has taken a "wrinkle" from the Maua Bank, and advises the Directors of the Casa de Moneda to open a Savings Bank. Then it is that competition renders many a service to the public: formerly the bank was less obliging than at present.

Some particulars about Boutinet Bros. are amusing. The day previous to the departure of the junior brother, he invited a friend of mine to dine with him, and under the genial influence of a sparkling champagne, with a round sum in his pocket, he dwelt on the necessity of his complying with the invitation to visiting his poor mother in France. Since then a letter has been received from Bordeaux, stating that this pious son has forgotten to call on his mother, be either a Monte-cristo, or else turned enzy, and begging some particulars about him. We are informed that he sold a small steamer here, which he subsequently took in his hegira to Rosario, where he resided her.

The French packet will arrive this morning. We receive no supplements by her, but, in case of astounding intelligence, will issue bulletins in the course of the morning. The Mersey leaves, this evening, with a heavy mail, including 700 oz. our Pocket Editions, 800 Weekly and 1000 Monthly Commentators. Among the passengers are Mr. John Hitchens (the London mineralogist who has been exploring Matto Grosso), Mr. Young, and D. Oriental.

Sr. Castillo is about to publish another book with the same name as Calvo's. Calvo's Commentaries on Federal Constitution :" it will be the same size as Calvo's (3-0 pages), but the cover probably of a different color. If Congress' Bye-Bye explains, it will be through a 2nd edition. In my event Mr. Castillo is evidently very Federal in his tastes, but then his complexion is not so Hueso as ours.

BANK-STATISTICS.

From a report by Mr. Lelong in the 7th number we make the following interesting calculations. The deposits of the Bank of B. Ayres in paper-money amount to 45,750,777 nps, and in specie to $1,582,788—something under 16 millions of doubloons. The depositors are 10,000 in number, in the following order: Italians, Argentines, Spaniards, Basque, French, English, Germans.

The ratio of deposits shows an immense superiority on the part of the countrymen, thus: each Englishman 1662000 nps, German 62,0003, Argentine 37,0000, Frenchman 31,0000, Italian 37,0003, Spaniard 30,0003, Basque 29,0003.

The specie deposits give priority to Argentines, in the following ratio: each Argentine 5,1003, Spaniard 3,4003, Englishman 3,2003, German 1,1003, Frenchman 2,2003, Basque 1,1003, Italian 12503.

In fact more than half the total deposits for specie and one quarter of those in paper-money are held by natives. Italians also own a quarter of the currency deposits.

THE MARBLE-DUST SUGAR.

We are glad to learn that the Police is taking steps to trace the authors of this disgraceful fraud. It is even said that some one has been arrested, but we are not sure of the fact. The paragraph inserted in yesterday's paper has attracted the notice of many dealers, and we hope Sr. Casey will justify the impartiality and vigilance of his office by bringing to condign punishment the "respectable" swindlers.

Mr. Bonpland has paid us a visit to assure us that he knew nothing of the fraud, and, that at once on being apprised of it, he participated the same to all purchasers. He adds that the sum you has only been made by some small dealers in consequence of the exact nature of the compound is not known, but supposed to be marble-dust.

TEA-TABLE TALK.

As we said in our last week's number things are getting very dull. People appear to be almost tired of the winter and anxiously looking forward to summer that they may go into the country to recover their health and spirits for the next winter's campaign. Therefore we trust our fair readers will excuse us if not being our fault, if that we cannot chronicle more balls than we are now enabled to do.

Last Saturday one of our leading satires appear in Bells, which was very well attended; and although it was early in two o'clock, we must remember that dancing commenced at the reasonable hour of nine. Amongst the fair ones present we saw a young lady who something egg lost one of her parents, and who last summer was the constant companion of Aurora, in her walks at me of the coast towns; the bashful but pretty daughter of one of our barracqueros was also present; as also the daughters of one of the city proprietors. and last though not least the youngest daughter of one of the Southern estancieros, celebrated for his adhesion to the Unitario cause.

On Sunday, the tertulia we announced in the house of one of our leading lawyers came off, and was well attended. No wonder, as all the friends of the family made a point of attendance to celebrate the worthy host's birthday. The belles were certainly the two cousins, relations to the author of this doctor, and the trio of sisters, who bear a name that will be seen in all old Custom house documents. Dancing was kept up with great spirit until nearly daylight, when the company broke up, after drinking a friend of mine's health in a bumper of good champagne.

On Monday, the ball came off, as we announced, in Calle del Parque, and was crammed to excess. It was kept up till morning, when folks retired rather unwillingly, as if regretting to part so soon from such a lively host. It is difficult to recall to memory, and more so to distinguish the belles, but all heard we may mention two beauties well known to our readers—and who, by the way, are near relatives—but we will not attempt to give our opinion which the aunt or the niece carried the day: we will leave that to their respectable partners during the evening. The pretty daughter of a lawyer had also her circle of admirers; the charm of her manners, and her good sense unriable as ever. The daughter of a noble widow, who lost her better half about the time of Cepeda, had a distinguished place amongst the fair ones. The sister of the worthy host also looked very well, and was much admired. The daughters of a wealthy proprietor shone conspicuously.

On Wednesday there was also a tertulia at one of our merchants, it was but thinly attended, no doubt owing to the fact that the "Teutonia Concert" came off on the same evening. The most conspicuous in the list of beauties, were the married lady in the black velvet dress, the one in green & pink, the young lady in the blue spotted dress, and the brunette in the yellow dress.

For next week, we hear that a tertulia is to be given to celebrate the birthday of a young lady, who has made a stir this season in our fashionable saloons, and who has appeared more than once in our columns. Owing to the unsatisfactory news from the other side, the Oriental gathering will not now give the "tertulia" we announced in our last. We hear several balls will be given, as we enter the month of October, previous to the winter, but as at present nothing positive has been decided, we will not place our readers on the horns of uncertainty. Strange to say, we do not hear anything of the "Plata Ball." We hope it will not be long deferred.

Marriages appear to be the order of the day in the aristocracy of this city, and we hear that as many as five have taken place this last week. On dit, that the daughter of a well known Estanciero is engaged to a Saladeriste, and the last of a long string of charming ladies will espouse a gentleman who is to be some one of these days elected president of the republic. Another is also soon to marry the daughter of a provincial proprietor. A marriage has been broken off, owing to a duel that took place last week, but as usual neither of the combatants lost blood. The rivals were known friends, and the quarrel arose from a stupid dispute as to the better right to a flower the young lady wore in her head-dress. We hear it is likely the fair one will retract her dismissal. The duellists are at friends as ever, and no doubt readily regret their heatiness, more so as one of the parties was the cause of his friend's engagement; and after an exchange of shots, an arrangement was easily effected by the seconds.

POET'S CORNER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE STANDARD.

SIR—I have the honor to enclose you the first part of a series of imaginary conversations which are in the style of W. S. Landor, Esq., I am now composing. I trust to paint in them without exaggerating, the tastes, the manners of our age, catching as they fall the Cynthia of the minute, and flying the airy charm in lasting words.

This idea overpowered me yesterday night when my attention was called to the advertisement in which the whole stock of household gods and decections left by the firm of Butinet Brothers is offered to a discriminating public.

Suspicion thereupon arose, since momentarily taking greater proportions, that I made my first great mistake in life when I adopted the diplomatic career—that career has engrossed my energies, and exhausted efforts which I can free to assert would have been successful in other fields.

Butinet's property, on which four millions of Government depreciated papers was advanced, consists of "capsules, park tapaz botellas," "Yerbas para hacer Yerbouth," "botellas con botellitas de todas clases," 323 cajones vacios, damajuanas ídem, Frasqueras ídem, botellas ídem, y corchos—but I refer the curious to the detailed advertisement.

Now, sir, I myself hold a large collection of botellas de toda, variety, and an immense assortment of old bottles, besides 325 cajones not "vacias," but filled with diplomatic manuscripts of great, and, to the historian and political economist, of ever increasing, value. There is also the cotente, the lunes, and the escritoio on which these dissertations were produced, and in connection with the ink bottles nearly an equal number of cerchos—capsules we do not require in our business.

Now, sir, with these available accessories, will you believe it?—but no, it is incredible—up to this time I have been unable to discount bills drawn upon the most distinguished firms of my own beat on the other leg co.'s) upon sonages high in office in England, France, Turkey, and Japan.

I halt at this moment a draft upon an eminent publishing establishment drawn by her Majesty's Secretary of State to the department of Foreign affairs, and which I have been unable to obtain any accommodation whatever, though repeated applications have been made to the principal bankers and broking houses, as also all financiers of the place. No wonder that I am falling prematurely into the sere and yellow leaf, my exertions in the great cause of humanity unrewarded, and myself the victim of conspiracy and injustice.

Such, sir, are the freaks of fortune—behold me a change d'affaires in cast-off habiliments, retreating from the unwilling muse a precarious subsistence, yet possessing the same securities as those which Messrs. Butinet wealth, rank, the smiles of beauty, and a palace your chance on the Lake of Como? Well may I exclaim with the poet—

Sic vos non vobis! nique tandem I

Accept, sir, the assurance of the distinguished consideration with which I have the honour to be, &c., &c.,

BENJAMIN C. FOSTER, LL.D., D.E. and M.D. of Rio, and of Lee—

Imaginary Conversations by Wheta's Swingo Creditor, Esq., revised from the Collection of Foxer, L.L.D., Esq. Numerous Essays and Minutes. Plenipotentiary to the Russian of Japan, &c. &c.

SCENE—A Bank, where no wild thyme grows, though there, rhymed once every where—Piles of gold, silver, and other coins—Bright French polished counter, with brass scales, and weights of from a ton to a drachm.

Enter Customer.

Customer—The manager.

Clerk—The manager is in,

But with important business all engaged,

Discounting bills, and making calculations

Upon the possible rise or fall of gold—

Accepting some from those that have too much,

And, by the banking precepts of Foxer,

Giving to those who it have none at all.

Customer—With eloquent tongue and pen

Of explanation

Have you the great man's duties well portrayed?

His would I see on matters most momentous.

And for yourself, young man, should changing fate

In some unhappy juncture this decree,

That, wanting one, you cannot find a friend,

Remember then you have a friend in Foxer.

(Clerk bows gratefully—does bang impressively—young woman comes down passage trippingly—winks at cashiers suspiciously—clerks to right change to left suddenly—and great animation in business generally, during which head acquaintance dispenses of a well-to-do fly with green office rules!)

Clerk—Please sir, this way.

Private board of green cloth—desk of polished brass—Banking Encyclopædias elaborately bound—creats, mottoes, and coats of arms—"The Mammoth and Never no-plate-to mend Company" (limitless)—ditto in inkstand, new splitpoon, new blotting paper, new pen, new wafers, and a strong smell of bullion pervading the ambient.

Clerk (to Customer)—But first, your name, sir.

Customer—My name's De Boots: upon the Grampian Hills

My sire hath grew thy grape and put his foot in it.

I therefore call myself De Boots Debutinet.

(Clerk retires backwards, with face to Manager, who "takes a sight" at the new Customer.)

Manager—Debutinet, although thy name's unknown,

It's owner's sentiments are all my own.

What's in a man with nothing in his head?

(What's in a name?" as somebody once said.

Yet those who credit omens, I'll be bound,

Would say that yours's was ominous in sound.

Here lets alone our steps, our actions, guide,

Steering aloof the superstitious tribe.

So saw, De Boots, to what financial tide

May I the honor of this call ascribe?

Deboots—Great, noble sir, my object is to ask,

To make your advance to worthy men,

For by a singular coincidence,

Of various chances, I this moment find,

A slight necessity for ready cash—

And to avoid the useless sacrifice

Of ancient chattels, situate in Spain,

Now, for the first time, in a long career,

I sense assistance need—a trumpery loan,

To expedite the business of my choice.

Manager—Your argument is sound, and you speak well,

But on the nature of this business I

Would gladly ask an unenquiring eye.

De Boots—That business is to make the engraver's art,

The printers, and the bright lithographer's,

Who on the cork a capsule can compress,

And on the capsule stamp another name,

A name upon the label deftly forged,

Upon the wrapper printed bold and clear,

Branded without the boxes openly—

(For openness, good sir, and truth I but

To be plain—my business is to bring

These pleasing arts into soft harmony,

And in sweet union all their use combine:

Then in my great deposits you may find

Of empty bottles never-ending piles—

Purchased are they by urchins in the streets,

Who with tinchorros' ply the noisy trade,

Shouting stentoriously, "buy bottellas,"

And driving many a worthy merchant mad.

These do we fill, perchance with Tennant's ale,

On moved principles, October brewed,

With spumous, lace, soda, and strychnine:

Anon with other mixtures well concocted,

Appears that grateful wine, Bordeaux named,

Margaux, La Rose, and gentle Leoville,

Or famed Moselle, from banks more green than these—

Or nutty sherries, dry and pale of hue—

Or aged ports, rare and peculiar too—

Or fine still Hock, or still finer Cognac,

Tokay, Constantia, Malmsey, Tranent,

In short, of every favourite class and brand,

Exhaustless is the stock we have on hand.

And when a reputation has been made,

By my dealers in the liquor trade,

We buy the bottles of the proper shape,

And make a mixture for the gulled to take,

With corks and capsules, labels all complete,

And so exact, that even you they'd cheat.

Yet it is painful, for I can't deny,

From these decoctions many a man must die,

Or linger through a life of grief and pain,

Diseased—and why?—the doctors can't decide.

Or if explaining, their assistance lend,

To send the patient quicker to an end.

And now, my friend and pitcher, I'll you find,

These, plain details attractive to the mind,

Say, as a man of discounts and of peace,

Should I this business labour to increase,

Until Ambition' self is satiated,

With Government paper, though depreciated,

That when I leave the transitory scene

To mix my spirit in the all-serene—

Or wife, my offspring, or my friend may claim

Some legacy beyond an honest name.

Banker—(much affected)—

You've spoken, Boots De Butinet, or hour,

and sweet's your discourse, though your wine be sour,

And like it, too, your arguments are sound,

And touch me up with interest, most profound.

Where'er you wish, then liquor to distil,

And funds are wanting—draw on me a bill!

As many signatures as you can find,

I like upon these drafts to see behind,

Accommodating, some well-deserving friend,

Your eminent company I'll recommend,

And shun its influence and its fame extend.

LATEST FROM ROSARIO.

The Paxon arrived yesterday morning, but, as usual, brought us no Mitre's mail with the kind tidings of the kindness of Forster, who happened to drop in to read his Batinut proofs, we should be all in the dark as to what is going on up the river. We gather the following summary from the distinguished doctor.

People are terribly fidgetty in Rosario.

The editor of the 'Ferro-Carril,' Sr. Perkins, is a cocktail, and, therefore, will not exchange any longer with the 'Standard.'

The markets are very firm, but gin has a downward tendency.

The post is open, but the Custom-house was shut up for twelve hours before the leaving of the steamer. She left at seven, a.m.

Another bank failure has occurred near the river.

A delightful road had been laid out from the Mole to the Prison, with Paradise trees on either side.

All the leading men of the town had become members of the 'cocktail club.' The society had held another meeting, and the club rules were put in force in a delightful state of moisture: the drought is gone. The club was about to start a new savings' bank, and had written to the editor about it.

It was currently rumoured that a great gold mine had been discovered in the immediate vicinity of the Pallarito. The pickets were hard at work, digging away, and had nearly undermined the building. When the news spread, the 'cocktails' were seen hastily on the ground. After incessant labour, a small piece of a brass candlestick, and a sort of fossil snuffers, were discovered. At the close of the diggers work the mine extinguished, and the cavity filled up with a cartload of old rags, Government documents, treasury bills, and such-like, which the 'cocktail president' kindly provided.

The rails for the Cordova Railway were expected up in the Paxon on her next trip.

The mills and the police were doing a good business, both grinding away, and the people liked the diet fines.

A young Government officer was knocked head over heels the other day, by no ordinary woolworworum, who charged him with interfering with her soapy avocations, by constantly fishing for 'carracaracaire,' just in the very spot where she had been accustomed to wash for the last 40 years. The case was before the tribunals, and caused much comment.

Owing to the high price of land since the opening of the Cordova Railway works, several parties were obliged to sow cotton on the tops of their houses. The azotea seed is considered the best description.

Much indifference from the Interior had arrived, bringing two old women from San Juan; no papers, no letters, but "a square of chocolate."

The Chacho had rented a house in Rosario, and was shortly expected down to start in the boot and shoe making business.

A great racing match was talked of between Messrs. Sauce and Gordillo: the course was not yet fixed on, but it was rumoured that it would be from Rosario to Valparaiso, through the new pass.

State of the custom-house very dirty. No communal review had been made for this packet, as there had been nothing recently sold except a few friends.

PARANA.

The 'Argentino' and 'Litoral' continue their denunciations of President Mitre's Government, in unmeasured language. There are also grave complaints against the present administration of Corrientes. Under the heading "Latest Federal Victory," we read that Peñaloza has been triumphing on San Juan, and took that city—that Colonel Arredondo was killed in a skirmish with the rebels—and that Saudes was at the point of death. As we have received later accounts, by which the Chacho appears to be in the Llanos de Rioja—to give our readers a reference in this, probably, like the 'Tribuna' victories in Banda Oriental, "the wish being other to the thought."

IMPORTANT FROM CORDOVA

The elections in Catamarca were a terrible scene of riot, and the voting a mockery.

News from Rioja, Sept. 2, states that the Chacho was expected to enter that city with his freebooters next day; but it was hoped the garrison (400 strong) would be able to repel him. Arredondo has refused the candidature of Governor.

Great discontent prevails at Cordoba.

The Chacho is at Costa Alta with a large force. D. Julio Campos writes from Chacho, that he encountered a band of rebels under Crispin Taboada, and routed them, killing 1, capturing 11, and taking booty 120 horses and mules.

Dr. Derqui passed Rosario en route for Corrientes, 2 nd inst. The Senators of Jujuy and Tucuman returned by the Gordillo diligence to their native towns.

RIO VERMEJO.

Mr. Illyes informs us that his report to Government, on the Indians of the Gran Chaco, is nearly completed, setting forth the classification, idioms, habits &c. of those people, and the means most apt to bring them to a civilized and pacific mode of life. He thinks the exploring steamer cannot return for 8 or 4 months, waiting a high tide: also that there is no obstacle to a permanent navigation of the Vermeje, as far as Esquina Grande, if steamboats of light draught be constructed for this special purpose.

THE MAUA SAVING BANK.

The following are the conditions or regulations of the Maua saving bank, which will be opened to the public on Thursday Oct. 1st 1864.

1st. The Bank receives at interest any sum from Twenty five dollars currency or one silver dollar upwards.

2nd. The interest allowed is six per cent (6 $\frac{0}{0}$) per annum which is liquidated every six months.

3rd. The depositor can, at any time return the whole or part of the money deposit.

4th. Once the amount deposited exceeds Twenty five thousand dollars currency or one thousand dollars silver the depositor if he wishes can open an account current according to the rules established by the Bank.

5th. In case the depositor loses his Pass Book it can be replaced by another in paying twelve dollars currency, advertising the loss in the public newspapers.

LOCAL EVENTS.

NARROW ESCAPE.—One of our leading foreigners coming in from Morón the other day had a most miraculous escape. Part of the road which is much fenced, has a matter of course frequently crowded with cows and horses. On the morning in question, the train was closed over a horse which was lying between the rails. Had the animal been on the rails, the pilloh bites are that our esteemed friend would have been killed, as the train would most certainly have been knocked off the track.

ESTANCIA REMEDIOS.—The Auction of said Estancia is postponed, and will take place on Monday 8th October.

INDIAN INVASION.—We learn that the Indian Cacique, with 16 Indians, has crossed over from Entre Rios to the Banda Oriental to join Lamas. Many more Indians are expected to follow.

SANDES' FUNERAL.—This was very poorly attended, and rightly inferior to the ceremony got up in Mendoza.

WIGS.—We think that wigs are in fashion, particularly amongst colored people and old cobblers.

INSURANCE COMPANY.—The Queen Insurance Company of Liverpool has opened an agency in this city at Mess Bateure Barclay & Co. The policies will be made out in Spanish and the terms are very favorable. This Company grants open policies on goods in deposit.

COTTON PLANTING.—Our great cotemporary, the "Tribune," we are pleased to see, is giving over politics and talking to cotton. We recommend the improvement at once, and hope the editor will give us a few columns about people who want cotton seed will be supplied from 1 to 10 lbs. We suppose this is the seed which our yellow countrymen are Dyeing and Packing preserved to them some month ago to distribution, but which was overlooked in the hurry of the Buenos Ayrean Patriotism.

ESTANCIA AUCTION.—To-morrow the splendid estancia Remedios will be sold by auction by Mr. Thomas Bowbent the well known auctioneer. It has, however been put upon the auction. Please see to be sure at this office.

MISCELLANY.

WHY LADY ELLESMERE FAILED.—Lady Ellesmere's account of the failure of her speculations was to prevail with the heads of military establishments to shorten the hours of work to ventilate their rooms, to desk-mate rather from Sunday work, and generally to treat their workwomen well. There were succinctly objects, but the grand point was to shorten the periods of toil. After 10 years of efforts or waiting little or nothing was done, or likely to be done, unless the 10 millions of Sweated Work may be ascribed to the influence of these ladies. Their society has died out, for some of the most active are dead, that the most unbusiness like collection of women ever a venture to exhibit. I am not prepared to say this—it is enough to say that, as the event proves, these ladies had no comprehension of the depth and extent of the mischief. When they appointed publicans and sinners the employers might well feel (though they dared not say) that they under stood their own business better than their aristocratic employees could do; that the evils would not exist if they could be so easily precluded as their philanthropy suggested; and that it was for no object of their own that they ran such risks with their workwomen. The system in which they were involved involving them, in fact, no choice. Finding that hired helpers were said to spoil what they took in hand; that dresses were sent out of one, to receive alterations, but the delicate material should be spoilt, and that ladies could not usually give timely orders. "As they could not do it themselves a certain of the number of dress a very mighty aid," the chairman of the dressmakers' ladies withdrawn commencing their task to—Who Le Magasin de Nouveautés. Whatever difficult or troublesome "the Legislature" is called upon to do, whether the Legislature is upon it or not, it is a monetary which or not.—Once a Week.

THE ELECTRIC STEERING APPARATUS.—The inventors in the size of the ships of the Royal Navy, as well as those in the mercantile marine, have rendered many improvements in the construction and work of these vessels. In response to a royal circular, it is at least regarded in the navy as a matter of duty and economy. A new push has just been tested, it is said successfully, before the Royal Naval Officers. The apparatus is an invention of Mr. Colcomb, C. E. The communication between the engine and the helmsman is performed by means of a steam engine of a coil of conducting wires. The wires are covered by Messrs Silver's process, with a thin coating of insulating rubber, but differ from the finest silk of silk, but protected by tarred hemp, cordage. The motive power is a small double acting battery which when charged will remain permanently in action for twelve months. On the paddle-box bridge, Pensacola, or any other place, is erected a pillar, on the top of which is placed a circular dial-plate with a handle at back fixed to a revolving arm, supported from the axis of the dial; the words "Port," "steady," "starboard," A small box is placed before the helmsman upon the face of which an arm dial plate duplicate of that on deck is placed, covering the orders that may be transmitted by the apparatus. When the quarter-room the arrangements is of a similar description, the words and dial plate being "steady," "about easy," "half speed," "main half speed," "main full speed," "stop," "reverse." As long as no change in the motion or engines is made a signal to the captain and every order communicated is registered, and no mistake permanently in order until another is sent.

THE ART OF PRINTING.—Laurenzoon John Coster was the first European printer. He printed a book of images with wooden blocks, in Holland, in the year 1438. The leaves were printed upon one side only, as the backs were pasted together when the book was bound. John Faust established a printing office at Mentz, and printed a bible in Latin. Both in 1450. Gutenberg, of Mentz, invented cut metal types, and made use of them in printing the earliest edition of the Bible, which was printed between 1450 and 1455, but 1462, and thus ended the thanks of mankind for giving a vital impulse to the most powerful engine of civilization. The art of Printing, established by the city of Mentz, situated upon the banks of the Rhine, was captured and plundered about the year 1462 and the workmen dispersed throughout the new art more rapidly through Europe than it would otherwise have done. Printing is one instance of good established from evil, and shows that the horrors of war are not always unproductive of benefit. The first type were not formally cast in moulds, and made to what is now known as cut punch, or block letter. But the Roman characters were not used within 50 years of that time. The present printing characters were cut by Aldus, a Venetian, a printer by trade, and of the most complete and effective in the whole world. It possesses every type of all the known characters of the Asiatic languages, ancient or modern and the typical various European languages, the Italic, Greek or whose differ from the ordinary Roman letters. Of the many Europe six different forms and sizes. Five hundred hands are constantly employed in this printing office; and much is the number of books and of presses that over 1,000 octavo volumes of 600 pages each issue struck off in a single day. A comparison of this in age celebrity of the monthly printing office with the modern arrangements of Gutenberg's Bible in 1455, which occupied six years in printing will best illustrate the advances which the art of printing has made in a period of four centuries.

LAND HOLDINGS OF LAND.—The census returns show that the number of small holdings in Scotland, above one and up to five acres, was reduced from 104,430 in 1861, to 85,469 in 1861, or 18·5 per cent. Holdings from five to 15 acres were reduced from 32,270 in 1851 to 18,931 1861, in or 27·2 per cent. The farms above 15 and 20 acres, 79,312 in 1851 to 111,211 in 1861, an increase of 78 per cent, and the holdings above 30 acres, from 48,835 in 1851 to 67,147 in 1861, or 109·2 per cent. These changes were substantially made between 1841 and 1851; the changes in the last 10 years have been comparatively slight. In 1861 there were 1,c·s than the number of landholders in Ireland, but the number of distinct not large, the enumerator having to account for to a set acreage every to ward. There is another return now made we believe, for the first time, enumerators of the census of 1861 were instructed to obtain an account treating all farms held by one person as one holding, whether the lands adjoined or not. The result was that the total number of holdings in 1861 from 5,019, 45 to 55,4961. It was then shown 210 persons held land in Ireland in 1 acre each, 75,161 persons held above one and not exceeding two acres, 1611, held from two to 5 acres, 127,809 from 5 to 15 acres, 74,6941 from 15 to 30, 37,675 from 30 to 20 0, 9,016 from 200 to 500, and 2,437 held above 500 acres. The return being made in statute rather than Irish acres, nearly accurate; the many of correction this would be to reduce the numbers, but it would not be to any great extent.

ON CHARGES.

September 26.

This was a busy day for exchange, notwithstanding that it was the eve of the sailing of the British packet. Several bills on England were negotiated this morning. The demand for exchange was something more than we estimated, being at least £120,000, of which one-house have drawn about one-fourth.

Ounces were taken in the day, opening at 432, and closing at 431. The payments or collections were rather good, and shopkeepers seem to feel money easier.

The news from the interior is of the usual character, unsatisfactory. In Cordova there is evident signs of another revolution, owing to the political state of party spirit. The Chacho is still in Los Llanos. The Government troops had obtained some slight advantages.

From the Banda Oriental we have nothing new. The steamer is anxiously expected to-morrow, as it is reported the news will be very important. The Brazilian Minister here, whose mission is shrouded in such mystery. Mochambe, brokers, in fact all, join with us in opining, that peace we want, and peace we must have.

No more Scab in Sheep.

The most valuable Specific patented by the Sardinian Government is to be had at the General Depositories Buen Orden 265 Alsinaen del 2 de Basten.

One session of this specific suffices to cure the most malignant cases, and experience proves that it is the cheapest and most effectuous remedy of all known.

Its discovery has essentially an entire revolution not only in curing the Scab in Sheep but also every similar disease in all domestic animals.

The only depositories in this City calle Buen Orden, Alsinaen del 2 de Basten, and at the Puerto del Tigre, Alsinaen 2a, and establishment of Carlos Geyer.
